XNX Music City Executive Airport

Aviation Moves Tennessee

Tennessee's aviation system has 76 public-use airports that support a wide range of activities, from commercial airline travel to private aircraft operations. Aviation contributes approximately 9% of Tennessee's gross domestic product (GDP) and generates an estimated $53.8 billion in total economic impact across the state. To better understand how these airports support Tennessee's economy, the Tennessee Department of Transportation (TDOT) Aeronautics Division conducted an updated Aviation Economic Impact Study.

About Music City Executive Airport

Serving the City of Gallatin and surrounding areas of Sumner County in Middle Tennessee, Music City Executive Airport (XNX) provides general aviation access within a rapidly growing region tied closely to the Nashville metropolitan area. The airport functions as a key aviation facility for business travel, public-service operations, and regional connectivity in an area where aviation complements interstate access and economic growth.

Music City Executive Airport is a publicly owned, public-use general aviation airport featuring a 6,300-foot paved runway capable of accommodating a wide range of general aviation aircraft, including large business jets and specialized operations. The runway length and supporting infrastructure position the airport as a major business aviation gateway for the greater Nashville region.

Several aviation-related organizations operate directly on-airport. Jet Access maintains an on-airport presence as the fixed-base operator (FBO), providing fueling and support services for aircraft. In addition, AJM Airplane Company conducts public-service aviation activity. Meta also utilizes the airport to support executive travel.
